Dear PGA Herd Owner,

The old adage that “the more things change, the more things stay the same” certainly applies to this era of rapid technology development we are seeing in the dairy cattle breeding business. Wonderful tools like gender SELECTed™ semen and genomic evaluations are having a big impact on how we go about breeding cattle. Yet at the end of the day, it all boils down to having a new batch of fresh heifers entering the milking string every year that actually delivers improved performance.

This is why the Program for Genetic Advancement™ (PGA™) remains such a valuable part of Select Sires’ and the industry’s genetic improvement programs. PGA-proven bulls are the gold standard for delivering genetics that translate to improved performance on the farm. Records gathered from your herd allow us to select the very best bulls based on real daughter performance and make those widely available to you for ongoing use in your breeding program. In addition, the records gathered on daughters of all the PGA sires get used in re-calibrating the genomic evaluations we use to choose the next generation of PGA bulls. With the additional information gathered on each generation of PGA bulls, we see a small improvement in accuracy in our genomic evaluations. So the role of PGA hasn’t changed; it remains the foundation of all our genetic improvement programs.

The strategic use of genomic evaluations allowed Select Sires to deliver more genetic improvement to you in 2010 than ever before. Select Sires progeny tested 360 bulls across all the dairy breeds. The averages of the 304 black and white Holsteins sampled in 2010 were +913 Milk, +476 Net Merit Dollar (NMS) and +1968 Total Performance IndexSM (TPISM). In addition to individuals with high genomic evaluations, we’ve made a strong effort to select several bulls with diverse pedigrees as well as several bulls to fill specialized market needs. All of these bulls were chosen by the most experienced sire analysts in the industry.

Your cooperation is as important now as it has ever been. The PGA program includes over 3,000 participating herds that milk more than one million cows. Your cooperation in using semen from these qualified young sires and making performance data available is vital. To recognize this cooperation, Select Sires returned nearly $2.4 million to PGA herd owners through PGA certificates in 2010.

Select Sires and the U.S. dairy industry are on the cutting edge with the use of genomic evaluations and the PGA program is at the foundation of this success. Thank you for your continued cooperation.

Sincerely,

Charles G. Sattler

PROCEDURES & BENEFITS

PGA Herd Qualifications

PGA is designed to efficiently test and evaluate a large number of sires each year. Accurately evaluating the early daughters of a sire is critical for future satisfaction of the many dairy producers who will use semen from program graduates. Thus, herds enrolling in the PGA are expected to meet and maintain minimum guidelines to achieve program goals, as follows:

- Maintain herd size of 40 or more identified cows of the breed enrolled to assure an adequate number of herdmates.
- Have average or higher production for the breed in the area in which the herd is located.
- Use semen from PGA sires in a manner that maximizes the number of PGA-sired calves.
- Apply permanent ID to all animals at birth.
- Be enrolled in a milk-recording program from which records are used in the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) genetic evaluations and maintain a data collection rating (DCR) of at least 80 percent.
- Submit breeding and calving data to the national evaluations.

PGA Sampling Procedures

The key to accurate, early evaluation is to randomly sample each sire throughout the population. Therefore, semen from each PGA sire is distributed to 175 herds across the nation to enable approximately equal usage in all regions and at various production levels. In addition, random usage within a herd is a key to accurate genetic evaluation. PGA herds typically adopt one of three common management approaches to ensure random usage, including using semen to breed:

- The next cows in heat after semen is received,
- all first-repeat services or
- all first-calf heifers (those that have calved once).

Milk Recording Requirements

Currently there is an endless combination of testing plans that qualify to be used in USDA genetic evaluations. Typically, supervised herds need to test about every other month. For herds using on-farm milk meters and uploading weekly average milk weights to DHI, then quarterly supervised testing with component sampling is acceptable. Owner-sampler herds are required to have monthly recording of milk weights and component testing. In addition, Owner-sampler herds need:

- To maintain at least 40 percent of the herd with usable ID.
- Record bulk tank weights on test day.
- Use QCS approved meters.

The following table provides estimated DCR values based on different combinations of testing frequency and supervision. If the frequency of recording milk weights differs from the frequency of component testing, look up the DCR for the milk weights and the component tests separately and then compute the average. In these cases, the average DCR value is used to determine the level of PGA benefits.

PGA Benefits

In recognition of the contribution PGA herds make to the industry, Select Sires provides the following benefits to active PGA herds:

- PGA semen at a nominal charge.
- $10 semen certificate for each identified PGA heifer calf that is born within 18 months of her sire's initial semen release. A maximum of five daughters of an individual sire per herd can qualify for this benefit.
- Up to $50 in semen certificates for each PGA daughter the first time a usable record appears in her sire's USDA Sire Summary through the third summary. The actual value of the certificate will depend on the value of the herd average DCR for milk weights and component testing.

$50 for herd DCR of 90 or higher

$40 for herd DCR of 80 to 89

$30 for herd DCR less than 80

- Periodic visits by Select Sires or member staff personnel.
- Some Select Sires' member cooperatives may provide additional benefits in their respective service areas.

PGA Sire Selection

Selection of bulls entering the PGA focuses on identifying the elite cows and bulls of the breed at an early age. Choosing the prospective parents early provides a significant benefit in that the youngest cows and bulls represent the most modern genetics and, consequently, the best chance of producing superior sons. Cows and bulls whose performance have stood the test of time also are used, provided their evaluations are still among the breed's elite.

When making selections at an early age, it is necessary to exercise caution to select the true performers that live up to their inherited expectations. Select Sires leverages the years of practical experience of its sire-department staff to not only interpret the data, but also evaluate the factors producing those "numbers." To improve the likelihood of success, the staff evaluates prospective PGA sires a second time, just prior to sampling. Thus, PGA herd-owners are assured they will receive semen from bulls with the highest potential for siring outstanding daughters.

The actual selection standards continually change as newer genetics become available. High production and sound conformation always receive high priority. To reduce inbreeding potential, on occasion Select Sires will sample a bull whose pedigree values are not at the very top. This is especially true in the high-components breeds.

In the Holstein breed, there are four groups of bulls being sampled: regular, red-and-white, sons of young sires and sires with less than 100 percent registered North American ancestry. Each PGA herd may elect to participate in the regular program only, or the regular program plus one or more supplemental programs.

PGA Evaluation

PGA sires are evaluated based on USDA sire summaries for production, breed association type summaries and Select Sires trait appraisal. The program's goal is to provide a broad sample so that each sire will have 70 or more daughters and an 85 percent or greater reliability when the full sample has been evaluated.

The decision about whether to graduate a PGA sire to the active lineup is based on the superiority of his daughters for both production and type, as well as his potential marketability at the time. With a large and diverse domestic market plus international demands, various combinations of traits have different acceptance in the different markets. Currently, enough sires are being sampled so that only one of 10 actually will be selected for the active lineup. Many others will have desirable summaries and produce outstanding daughters. For example, some sires with high Predicted Transmitting Abilities (PTAs) for milk are culled. The same is true for some high PTA type sires. The diverse results from sampling a large group of bulls guarantee that PGA graduates will provide the variety of genetics desired by dairy producers long into the future.
